Voter Turnout Across State Reported Light

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A light voter turnout was reported around the state today for Kentucky's first-ever presidential primary, a contest in which Jimmy Carter was the heavy Democratic favorite.

The race between Ronald Reagan and President Ford, however, was expected to be close.

It was sunny in some areas and partly cloudy in others, but officials said the light voter turnout indicated at mid-morning was not uncommon for a Kentucky primary election.

B. C. VanArsdale, a member of the Jefferson County Board of Elections, said "our indication is that the vote is going to be very light." He said 341,000 persons are registered to vote in the county.

"Judging from the voter interest, we think we will have a very light vote," VanArsdale said.

The picture was the same in other areas. In Boyle County in central Kentucky, election officials termed the voter turnout light at mid morning. And in Glasgow, 154 of more than 1,000 registered voters showed up at the city's largest precinct in the first hour and a half that the polls were open. A light voter turnout also was reported in Somerset in Pulaski County and in Winchester in Clark County.

The voting in Frankfort, the state capital, was described by election officials as "extremely light." Only one of 10 precincts checked estimated a 20 per cent vote and some predicted the vote would be as low as 5 per cent of those registered.

The Democratic race will be decided strictly by Democrats and the GOP contest by Republicans since no crossover voting is allowed in Kentucky.

The state's 37 Republican National Convention delegates will be divided between Ford and Reagan according to their shares of the statewide vote today, assuming each receives 15 per cent of the total.

Each side predicted it not only would exceed that but would win.

Harold Rogers, state Ford chairman, was the more cautious of the campaign spokesmen Monday, saying "I think President Ford has edged ahead... it's not going to be a runaway, but I predict he will win the primary."

He said Ford, who made only one appearance in Kentucky for a dinner speech in Louisville two weeks ago, (See Primary, Page 10)

Prospect Of Mail Service Cutback Growing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The prospect of a cutback in mail service appears to be growing as sentiment hardens in Congress against pumping large new federal subsidies into the financially ailing Postal Service.

The latest setback for proponents of the subsidy came Monday when the senior Republican on the House Post Office Committee announced misgivings about the pending legislation. Rep. Ed Derwinski, R-Ill., said he remained unconvinced that taxpayer money should be used to finance mail service.

The Postal Service has indicated that without new funds, service reductions can be expected this summer. Officials say the money is needed to offset the agency's chronic deficit.

Eliminating Saturday mail delivery reportedly is the most likely cutback. The Postal Service already is readying the legal work that would be needed to propose such a cut by midsummer.

Officials of the Postal Service and the agency's supporters in Congress say they are not optimistic about getting the funds needed to avoid service cuts.

"We are still hoping for legislation, but the chances look pretty dim now," one high postal official said. "Meanwhile, there are (cutback) measures waiting in the wings that aren't going to be popular."

The legislation that the Postal Service wants, authorizing $4.5 billion over a three-year period, is languishing in the Senate Post Office Committee. The panel scheduled action on the bill for earlier this month, then postponed it until June in hopes of obtaining President Ford's agreement on a compromise.

Meetings were held involving officials of the Ford administration and the Postal Service and senior members of the postal committees of Congress. However, the administration has not agreed to any more money, knowledgeable sources said.

While the meetings were taking place, supporters of the subsidy received another setback when House-Senate conferees decided against including any additional postal money in the budget target for the next fiscal year.

Supreme Court Clears Way For Advertising Prescription Prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court decision allowing pharmacists to advertise the prices of their prescription drugs may mean that customers will pay less for medication, according to a consumer group involved in the case.

Alan B. Morrison, who represented the Virginia Citizens' Council in the case that led to the court's Monday ruling, said, "I would expect that some pharmacy chains will start advertising prices and that prices will start coming down."

The seven-man court majority said consumers have a constitutional right to receive information on prescription drug prices.

The court rejected arguments by Virginia officials, whose state law against advertisement of prescription drugs was challenged. State officials argued that the advertising ban was needed to prevent cost cutting that would result in poor service.

"There is no claim that the advertising ban in any way prevents the cutting of corners by the pharmacist who is so inclined," Justice Harry A. Blackmun said for the court. "That pharmacist is likely to cut corners in any event."

"Virginia is free to require whatever professional standards it wishes of its pharmacists. But it may not do so by keeping the public in ignorance of the entirely lawful terms that competing pharmacists are offering," Blackmun said.

The Federal Trade Commission has been considering proposed rules to overturn laws in more than 30 states that prohibit or restrict pharmacists from advertising prescription prices. An FTC report said lifting those bans would save buyers more than $130 million a year.

A Washington-based research group, American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research, issued a report in March estimating buyers could save $380 million annually if drugs could be advertised.

An Associated Press study of prescription drug prices in 12 cities showed that in April 1975 prices of widely used medication differed greatly within a single city where advertising of prices was not allowed. For instance, in Chicago, the drug Darvon could be purchased for prices ranging from $1.90 to $3.90. The AP study showed.

Turning to the issue of advertising by other professionals, the court said this question could involve "quite different factors."

"Physicians and lawyers, for example, do not dispense standardized products," Blackmun said. "They render professional services of almost infinite variety and nature." He said advertising in these fields is more likely to lead to confusion and deception.

Moderate Turnout In Tennessee, Even More Voters Across Arkansas

By DON McLEOD
Associated Press Writer

President Ford has passed the halfway mark in his quest for the Republican presidential nomination and Democrat Jimmy Carter has a chance to reach the same milestone as six states held presidential primaries today.

In addition, Missouri Democrats were to select 54 delegates in district conventions tonight — more delegates than were at stake in any of the individual six primaries. Carter was expected to get at least 40 delegates, but none of the delegates will be legally bound to any candidate.

Early voter turnout was mixed in the three Southern and border states holding primaries — Arkansas, Tennessee and Kentucky. In the West, where polls opened later, it was too early to determine voter turnout.

The only unexpected development was a spate of requests for paper ballots for write-ins in Nashville, Tenn., where election officials said they were at a loss to explain the requests.

"I've had to send out more ballots," a spokesman for the Nashville Metro election Commission said.

There was no write-in campaign by any candidates in Nashville. Among the major Democrats, only California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. and Hubert

H. Humphrey were not on the ballot. Both Ford and challenger Ronald Reagan were on the GOP ballot.

Early reports indicated a moderate turnout in Tennessee. Skies were clear in most areas.

In Arkansas, the weather was mild and early turnout was reported moderate to heavy. One official pointed out, however, that it was difficult to judge the turnout since there had never been a presidential primary in the state before.

Ford's delegate strength was pushed over the halfway mark on Monday when 119 previously uncommitted New York delegates threw in with the President at the urging of Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller.

Carter, meanwhile, was predicting he would win 100 or more of the 191 delegates being contested in today's primaries in the Southern states and in Idaho, Oregon and Nevada. With the 740 he already has, that would push him past halfway to the 1,505 needed for the nomination.

The addition of the New Yorkers gave Ford 701 delegates to 544 for Reagan and means Reagan would have to score a virtual sweep of the 176 GOP delegates at stake in today's primaries to pass up Ford again. Reagan had held the lead after winning Indiana, Alabama and Georgia on May 4.

Father 'to Blame' for Sex of Child

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: You keep saying that the male determines the sex of a child. I suppose you know what you're talking about, but can you please explain it without getting too scientific and technical so the average person can understand it?

Thank you.

WANTS TO LEARN

DEAR WANTS: All right, here goes: The sex of a child is determined when the male sperm fertilizes the female's egg. The male sperm contains "X" and "Y" chromosomes in equal numbers while the woman's eggs contains only "X" chromosomes. When the "Y" chromosome is in the sperm that fertilizes a woman's egg, a male is produced. When the "X" chromosome is in the sperm that fertilizes a woman's egg, a female is produced.

So if the father isn't happy with the sex of the child his wife has produced, he has only himself to blame.

Strike another blow for Women's Lib!

DEAR ABBY: I am a senior in high school and am quite popular because I'm very good at sports. I am going with a beautiful girl (I'll call her Cindy) who is also very popular and well-liked. We've been going steady for five months, and here is the problem: Cindy wants to go all the way. We've done pretty much everything except that.

I love her very much, but I have a scholarship to a great university and a reputation as being an all-around high-class kid with my parents, faculty and peers. A baby would wreck my education, sports career and my life maybe.

Cindy keeps bugging me to go to bed with her, but I keep putting her off. I'm afraid if I don't give in I'll lose her, she'll spread rumors, and the guys at school will think I'm a queer or something.

What should I do?

A LIMIT ON LOVE

DEAR LIMIT: Tell Cindy that you aren't ready for that kind of relationship. (You aren't.) And if Cindy were to tell her peers that you refused her offer of sex, HER reputation—not yours—would be damaged.

Hooray for you. You are all man—and then some.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 32-year-old woman who has been divorced for six years. I have two children, and we live with my parents.

My mother is home all day, which makes it possible for me to work. Having my own place would put a strain on my budget, and in my line of work, I have to dress well and own my own car. (I do pay for our room and board.)

My father is narrow-minded, domineering and unreasonable. My mother is afraid to speak up to him. If I'm not in by midnight, he comes looking for me. He has burst into places, insulted my escorts and literally dragged me home. My friends are respectable, but after such a scene, they never call again.

I don't want to move out, as it's very convenient having my mother look after my children, keep house and cook for us, but I can't live this way, either. What would you do?

BIG PROBLEM

DEAR BIG: Which do you want more—the convenience of a live-in cook, cleaning woman and 24-hour baby-sitting service? Or the freedom to live your own life? Obviously, you can't have both. If I were you, I'd choose the latter. And the longer you wait, the more difficult it will be.

Goal Worthwhile

Cutting down on government red tape is like the weather. A lot of talk, but who ever does anything about it? President Ford's latest assault at least has something new—the specific goal of a 10 per cent reduction by July 1 in the number of forms used by government agencies to collect information from the public.

This gives the bureaucrats something they can get their teeth into. An agency with an inventory of 100 different forms now has the specific target of trimming the stock to 90. The President now can look for measurable progress in his anti-paperwork campaign. This is not the first time such a battle has been joined, but Mr. Ford's goal and deadline bring a fresh strategy into play. We wish him luck, but can't bypass an inescapable feeling of pessimism.

Wonder why?

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Tuesday, May 25, the 146th day of 1976. There are 220 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1787, delegates to the Constitutional Convention met in Independence Hall in Philadelphia to frame the U.S. Constitution.

On this date:

In 1803, the American poet and philosopher, Ralph Waldo Emerson, was born in Boston.

In 1836, Representative John Quincy Adams opposed the annexation of Texas in a speech in the House. He cautioned that the move might bring on war with Mexico.

In 1862, Confederate troops under General Stonewall Jackson defeated Union forces in the Civil War Battle of Winchester, Va.

In 1961, President John Kennedy asked the nation to strive to send Americans to the moon "before this decade is out."

In 1967, the U.S. State Department ordered wives and children of American officials to leave Egypt and Israel because of the danger of war.

In 1974, President Richard Nixon said in a nationwide radio address he must defend the office of the Presidency by refusing to turn over evidence sought in two Watergate criminal cases.

Ten years ago: A Kansas attorney, William Thompson, became the first layman in 83 years to head the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A.

Five years ago: Two supersonic jet passenger planes, the British-French Concorde and the Soviet Tupolev 144, made flights across Europe and Africa.

One year ago: Israeli and Lebanese jets and artillery battled for 12 hours in Southern Lebanon.

Today's birthdays: President Tito of Yugoslavia is 84. Writer Herman Wouk is 81.

Thought for today: Let us be thankful for the fools. But for them the rest of us could not succeed — Mark Twain, American humorist, 1835-1910.

Garrott's Galley

Alas! An Insurance Man Whose Pen Wouldn't Write!

By M. C. Garrott

Mrs. T. C. (Mildred) Collie, having read recently in this column about Pete Lancaster's meeting in Louisville with Roy Rogers and Dale Evans, has passed along an experience she and T. C. once had with the famous cowboy and girl.

She and T. C. were visiting relatives in Illinois just across the river from St. Louis when they learned that Roy and Dale were appearing at the St. Louis Arena near Forest Park. The ad in the paper stated that Dale would be on hand to autograph copies of her book, "Angle Unawares," for anyone who bought a copy at the show.

However, when the Collies reached the Arena and inquired about this, they learned that the paper had been misinformed. It would have been impossible for Miss Evans to have done this, they were told.

Not to be outdone and feeling this certainly wasn't the popular actress's sentiments, Mrs. Collie wrote a note and had an usher take it to Miss Evans' dressing room. In it, she wrote that Miss Evans' aunt, a lady by the name of Annie Merle Pullen, had been Mrs. Collie's Sunday School teacher when she lived in Uvalde, Tex.

Miss Evans immediately sent word for the Collies to come to her dressing room, but Mrs. Collie said she "chickened out." But not T. C.! He took a copy of "Angle Unawares" to Miss Evans' dressing room and got to meet her as well as the autograph, but not without incident.

When he handed the book and his ballpoint pen to Miss Evans for the autograph, the pen wouldn't write. "She thought this was quite amusing," Mrs. Collie recalls, "especially after she found out he was an insurance man!"

Unrelated to the Rogers-Evans experience, this involves the Collies' three-year-old granddaughter. Their son, his wife and the little girl were out for a drive not too long ago when they saw some dairy cows in a field beside the road.

The little girl spoke up and informed her parents that she knew how to milk a cow. Amused at this, they asked where she ever learned to milk a cow. She proudly informed them that she had seen "Mr. Roberts do it on TV."

"Just how do you milk a cow?" her mother asked her. To which the little girl replied: "You just squeeze their little carrots!"

One more Collie story: Framed on a wall in T. C.'s office is a bill of sale, dated Dec. 21, 1912, for a list of items his parents bought from Beale's Hardware with which to start housekeeping when they were married.

They were Mr. E. E. (Pete) Collie and his wife, who before they married was Ovie Spann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cross Spann, Sr. The cost of the entire list of 31 items came to only $30.15, but that was a lot of money for a eager, young bridegroom to come by in those days. Glancing down the list, the total would be more like $3,000 with today's prices.

Written in Mr. Tremon Beale's handwriting, here's what they bought and the prices:

1 Bedstead, $5.50; 1 safe, $5.00; set of chairs, $5.00; 1 mattress, $2.50; 1 bucket, .35; 1 dipper, .10; 1 sifter, .15; 1 bread spoon, .05; 1 dishpan, .50; 1 wash pan, .10; 1 tray, .40; 1 bucket, .15; 1 soap, .05; 1 shaving brush, .10; free rolling pin; coffee pot, .35; coffee mill, .50; dish, .15; knife and fork set, $1.00. Spoons, .30; 3 bowls, .35; rather, .65; cups and saucer, .65; well bucket, .35; shovel, .25; pair dog irons, .50; 2 tubs, .50; washboard, .35; set of glasses, .40; 4-piece set (of something) .40, and one barrel of flour, $5.50.

The Collies set up housekeeping half-mile east of Coles Campground Methodist Church and farmed most of their lives. Mr. Collie died May 11, 1968, while Mrs. Collie lived until June 25, 1972. In addition to T. C., there are two other children: Leon in Charleston, S. C., and Dr. James E. Collie, Normal, Ill.

NOBODY IN MY town will vote in the next presidential election... nor any election for that matter. Though there's probably never before in history been so much at stake in America, as now, apparently most of my 3,700 fellow townsmen are chronic misfits, who "couldn't care less." My town is "Jacktown"—Southern Michigan Prison.

In the morning chow line, a young murderer and a middle-aged burglar nearly tangled in an argument on the merits of the Republican Party. An alert guard broke it up just in time.

The burglar is serving his 10th term here. I know him well. So after he cooled off, I needed him a bit: "I take it you voted for Nixon."

"You kiddin'?" he scowled. "Man, I never voted in my life. I got sense enough to know, no matter who gets elected, the best any little guy's gonna get is the worst of it. The hell with votin'!"

That's seditious philosophy, isn't it: "The hell with votin'!"? Means down with democracy... your country... your government... and consequently every home, where government and democracy really begin in this land.

I began to wonder how my neighbors here at "Jacktown" felt about not being allowed to vote. So I questioned nearly 300 of them. Almost 90 percent merely shrugged. They were not at all concerned. 80 individuals admitted they'd never voted! I wondered to myself: "Could the deeds that landed us here be germane to such disregard for democracy?"

Consider these responses to: "Did you vote regularly when There'd be a bottle or two around. And somehow, before I considered all the issues and candidates, and decided who'd get my vote, it was either too late or I was too loaded to care anymore."

□ Sex offender (age 39, serving 1 1/2 to 10 years): "I never bothered to vote except in presidential elections. I voted for Dick Nixon because my name is Nixon, too." Again I wondered: "Wouldn't it be interesting to know how many other votes are cast for similar lackadaisical reasons?"

As for me—well, occasionally it's unpleasant to face the mirror of patriotism. Instead of voting, I've gone hunting and fishing and attended to personal matters of assorted kinds. But the future will offer opportunities to prove my determination never again to skip a chance to vote... as intelligently as I can!

"Low Down" FROM THE Congressional Record

By JOE CRUMP

(A Column for Readers Who Haven't Time to Review the Congressional Record Daily)

CONSUMER GOUGED

FROM NEW ANGLE

REP. FRANK ANNUNZIO (Ill.) "...The Nation's second largest bank (has) found a new angle from which to gouge the consumer's pocketbook."

"First National City Bank of New York City has declared that it will begin charging an automatic 50-cent service charge of its Master Charge Customers each time they pay their bills within the first month after a purchase."

"Shortly after Citibank's announcement, strongly criticized the move in a public statement and said that unless the new fee is repealed by the bank, I will introduce legislation which not only would prohibit such charges but would also make it mandatory for businesses which accept credit cards to give discounts to customers using cash. At present, such discounts are allowed by the Fair Credit Billing Act Amendments but are not mandatory..."

"I am upset with the bank's action because for years, Citibank has promoted its Master Charge accounts by telling consumers that if they pay their balances off promptly, they will not incur any charges. Approximately 350,000 account holders are paying their entire balances each month at the bank. But just like the spider who lured the fly into its parlor and then trapped it in its web, the bank has lured the customers into its credit card program with glossy promises and is now trying to collect extra fees.

"While the 50-cent charge may seem insignificant to individual cardholders, it represents a windfall profit to the bank and once the practice of the extra charge is established it will only be a matter of time before the 50 cent charge is increased to a much higher figure."

"The next step may well be a charge for customers who do not use their credit cards during any given month..."

+++ CRUMP'S GRASS ROOTS COMMENT

The credit card program is a convenience for the merchant; a convenience for the customer and profitable for the bank.

The bank charges the merchant a fee for performing the bookkeeping and the merchant passes the charge along to the customer in a small mark-up. Usually 5 per cent. Past due accounts are charged a finance penalty of 18 per cent per annum by the bank which is why the bank is in the credit card business in the first place. Citibank's attempt to charge an extra fee may just be a trial balloon to learn just how much the customer will tolerate.

Local merchants will undoubtedly resist any increase in bank charges.

Let's Stay Well

Antibiotics In Dental Surgery

By F.J.L. Blasingame, M.D.

Blasingame

Dental work is so common and safe that a patient may be surprised and concerned when his dentist prescribes an antibiotic before treatment or suggests that the patient's physician do so and join the dentist in management of the case.

The teeth and gums have rich blood supplies. These are usually adequate to keep down local infections in the mouth. Nevertheless, modern dentistry requires that the dental surgeon always be mindful of the potential danger of mouth bacteria causing local and systemic disease.

Many scientific papers have been published which document the fact that various forms of dental work on the teeth or gums can be associated with the release of enough significant amounts of bacteria into the blood stream (bacteremia) to cause trouble. Routine dental prophylaxis in young children has been found to be safe and usually free of any detectable bacteremia. However, studies carried out by William Speck, M.D., and associates in the Departments of Pediatrics and Oral Surgery, College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia University, New York, indicated that a significant number of children undergoing dental extraction of healthy or diseased teeth showed bacteremia. Streptococcus viridans was the most common offender.

While the immune defenses of the body in both children and adults are adequate to overcome the introduction of a limited amount of infected material into their systems, the potential risk for trouble is present especially in persons with heart disease and lowered resistance from systemic disease (such as diabetes mellitus or leukemia).

It is a matter of clinical judgment of the dentist and physician managing a case whether prophylactic antibiotics should be taken prior to dental surgery.

Q Mrs. A.S. wants to know if her aged mother needs more or less bulk in her diet than a younger person.

A Individual requirements for roughage vary. In general, older persons need fewer calories than in former years because of less physical activity. Also, senior citizens tend to have trouble avoiding constipation. Therefore, roughage is helpful in satisfying hunger without excessive caloric intake, and the bulk assists in assuring regular bowel function. Leafy vegetables, fruits, whole-wheat bread, and bran are usually adequate, reliable sources of roughage.

Q Mrs. V.K. seeks information about the proportion of federal funds expended for health care directed toward children.

A Perhaps the best way to answer your question is by a quotation from a Social Security Bulletin, dated May 1974 and issued by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare: "While children and youth represent more than 35 per cent of the total population of the United States, they are the recipients of only 15 per cent of the total amount of $80 billion expenditures for health care."

Thousands Of White House Documents Burned

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of documents were destroyed in government "burn bags" after they were sought as evidence in a lawsuit that accuses a presidential commission of discriminating against women, court records show.

The records also show that commissioners judging candidates for prestigious White House fellowships passed over three women finalists to pick two white males who had been ranked lower on the commissioners' own numerical rating system.

Three mathematicians who testified in the case concluded the White House commission was biased against women. But a fourth, Dr. Hilda Wing, who works for the Civil Service Commission, testified there is no statistical evidence to support such a hypothesis.

The suit was brought last Nov. 21 by a disappointed female finalist, Dr. Serena A. Stier. She based her complaint in part on the fact that 10 of the 32 finalists were women, but only two women were chosen along with 12 white men.

Each year since the program began in 1965, thousands of persons have applied for the honor of spending a year with top federal officials.

With the suit still in the courts, the White House announced Monday that next year's fellows will include eight women, the most ever chosen for the program. The 17 winners also include an Oriental male.

Last year five of the 14 fellows were from the military. This year one of the fellows selected is from the military.

Miles W. Kirkpatrick, chairman of the commission and former chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, declined to comment Monday on why the panel skipped over the three females in selecting this year's fellows.

Carl Goodman, an attorney for the fellowship commission, said the commissioners' reasons for omitting the women had been given in testimony but that the testimony is being kept confidential to protect the privacy of those who were not selected.

Bruce Hasenkamp, director of the program, testified May 11 that applications and initial numerical rankings of next year's 2,864 fellowship applicants, were destroyed in "burn bags" 30 days after finalists had been selected and notified in early February.

This means the destruction took place after Dec. 16, the date Dr. Stier's lawyers filed an official request for the commission documents related to the selection process. Although the request covered documents "to the present" and requested them "on a continuing basis," Hasenkamp, a lawyer, testified he did not realize that at the time Dr. Stier's lawyers were seeking data about next year's fellows.

Weekend Dangers For Boaters

FRANKFORT, Ky.—You've braved the Memorial Day Weekend traffic snarls and made it to your favorite lake without so much as a dented fender or traffic ticket.

No more worrying about being hit head-on by some fool drunk driver, or being run off the road by a bunch of crazy speed nuts.

Right? Wrong, friend. The most dangerous part of your holiday weekend may still be ahead of you.

According to Doug Shoulders, director of Water Enforcement for the Kentucky Department of Transportation, more people were killed in water-related accidents over the long Memorial Day Weekend last year than on all the highways in Kentucky.

During that three-day period, 22 persons died on Kentucky's lakes and rivers as compared to only 13 on the highway. It was the worst holiday weekend in Shoulders' memory.

In the two years prior to 1975, the state recorded only three water-related fatalities over each Memorial Day Weekend.

This year, with boating registrations already running 12,000 ahead of the number registered one year ago, Shoulders is expecting a record Memorial Day Weekend turnout. "But we are hoping that won't mean another record death toll," he added.

It shouldn't, if people take the time to heed some good advice.

Swimmers and waders account for a large percentage of the drownings reported in Kentucky each year. Many of those deaths could have been avoided if the victims had followed the simple rules of not swimming alone, being familiar with the area and, if swimming in an area marked off for that purpose, knowing and following the posted regulations.

Falling overboard is another major cause of past drownings said Shoulders, and many of those tragedies could be averted if the boaters had worn an approved PFD (Personal Flotation Device).

Practicing the "buddy system" — in other words, having another person in the boat with you — offers another ounce of insurance, he said.

Excessive speed, overloading or improperly loading the boat and drinking are other causes of accidents.

This year, as in years past, officers from the water enforcement division will be patrolling all of the state's major lakes and rivers. "If you haven't had your boat safety-inspected yet, ask one of our officers to do it," says Shoulders. "He'll be glad to oblige, and it will only take a few minutes of your time."

But it could save your life, he adds.

For those boat owners who must tow their boats behind a car or truck in order to reach the lake, Shoulders urges a quick check to insure that your trailer is in top condition and the right size for your boat.

"It's also a good idea to practice towing the outfit ahead of time before starting out in traffic," he said.

Further information about state water safety regulations, and safe boating hints, can be obtained by writing, or calling, the Kentucky Division of Water Enforcement, 114 W. Clinton Street, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

Dr. Lanning Winner In Marathon

Dr. Adam B. Lanning, of the Department of Sociology and Anthropology of Murray State University, represented the Murray Marathoners this weekend in the First Kentucky-Pioneer Marathon held at Frankfort.

The 26.2 mile event had more than 50 entrants of all ages. The course followed the Boone Trail Tour and consisted of three figure-eight loops all around the city of Frankfort including the capital, crossing bridges, etc.

Lanning's time of 3:16:32 was good enough to capture first place honors in the 46 and over division, and also to qualify him for next year's Boston Marathon (3:30).

The next outing for the members of the local running club will be the Marathon-Marathon at Terre-Haute, Ind. on June 5. Quite a few local runners plan to take part in this race.

More Arrests Expected In Bonavena Death

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Authorities say more arrests are expected "in the near future" in the brothel slaying of Argentine heavyweight boxer Oscar Bonavena.

A spokesman from the Nevada Division of Investigation and Narcotics also said late Monday that Cheryl Ann Rebideaux, who recently married Bonavena in a civil ceremony here, had been located at her mother's home in Sparks, Nev.

But the spokesman said she has refused to answer questions on the advice of her attorney.

The marriage was annulled when it was found that Bonavena had a wife in Buenos Aires.

Storey County Sheriff Robert DelCarlo identified Miss Rebideaux, 20, as a former employee at Mustang Ranch, where Bonavena was killed Saturday by a single rifle shot.

A brothel guard, Willard Ross Brymer, 31, of Sun Valley, Nev., was booked for investigation of homicide.

A state investigator said that as the result of cooperation of the Argentine federal police and the Los Angeles medical examiner's office "we anticipate other arrests in the very near future."

He did not elaborate. Bonavena's brother, Vincente, was expected to fly the heavyweight contender's body to Los Angeles Tuesday, then to Argentina.

In Virginia City, Storey County Dist. Atty. Virgil Bucchianeri said he is awaiting full results of an autopsy and probe by state and county authorities before deciding whether Brymer will be charged formally with murder.

Burke Fires 71

Carla Bowman of Peach Tree, Tex., and Wanda Hendrix of Brandon, Miss., were tied for second with 74s.

Medal play competition begins today, with the finals scheduled for Friday.

Indians Blank Orioles 4-0; Boston Outlasts Detroit 3-0

By FRED ROTHENBERG

AP Sports Writer
Dennis Eckersley gave up one hit too many and one walk too many. But some of the fans leaving Baltimore's Memorial Stadium were saying that Cleveland Manager Frank Robinson made one move too many.

It was the old argument of whether or not team success should play second string to individual accomplishment. Robinson, who is paid for victories, cast his vote for the team. So relief pitcher Stan Thomas got the final three outs to preserve Eckersley's one-hitter, as the Indians blanked the Orioles 4-0 Monday night.

"He was tired after the seventh but I let him go back and he got them out in the eighth," said Robinson. "But when he walked the first batter in the ninth, it looked like he was struggling."

Eckersley's ninth-inning walk to Al Burnaby was the Cleveland righthander's fourth walk of the game.

Thomas then walked Mark Belanger, but put his stamp on Eckersley's one-hitter by striking out the next three batters.

Elsewhere in the American League, the Boston Red Sox beat the Detroit Tigers 3-0; the New York Yankees downed the Milwaukee Brewers 5-2; the Kansas City Royals outscored the Texas Rangers 14-11; the Chicago White Sox beat the California Angels 5-3, and the Oakland A's whipped the Minnesota Twins 12-7.

Red Sox 3, Tigers 0

Rick Wise stopped Detroit on a two-hitter for his second victory in five decisions.

Alex Johnson singled in the first inning and Ron LeFlore extended his hitting streak to 26 games with a single in the third for the only Detroit hits.

Royals 14, Rangers 11

"It was just the worst game we've had all year," said Texas Manager Frank Lucchesi after the Rangers committed a club-record seven errors to help Kansas City score six unearned runs.

Celtics Gaining Reputation For Defense In NBA Playoffs

By BERT ROSENTHAL

AP Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics, long known for their racehorse offense, now are gaining a reputation for their defensive prowess.

The Celtics, leading the Phoenix Suns 1-0 in their nationally televised best-of-seven National Basketball Association championship series and seeking their 13th league title since 1957, are in that position more because of their defense than their offense.

In 13 playoff games so far this season — six each against Buffalo and Cleveland, and Sunday's 98-87 victory over Phoenix — they have held the opposition under 100 points 10 times and under 90 in five games. Their average yield has been 96.1 points per game.

That is well below the Celtics' season average of 103.9 — sixth best in the league — and also below the Chicago Bulls' figure of 98.8, lowest in the NBA.

Meanwhile, Boston's usually potent offense, which averaged 106.2 points during the regular season, has sputtered, mainly due to injuries to fast-break leader John Havlicek. In their last six playoff games, the Celtics have not reached the 100-point mark, but they have won four of them. Their over-all scoring average for 13 playoff games is 99.3.

Recently, the Celtics, who prefer to run, have been forced to play a deliberate, patterned offense.

"We're not a pattern, set-up basketball team," said Coach Tom Heinsohn. "If we could run and fast break, I'd feel a lot better. But the fact is that we don't have the people who can run. Havlicek has that injury (torn muscles in his left foot) and (Don) Nelson and (Steve) Kuberski haven't got good speed. The fact that we can't run right now worries me, because Phoenix is a real good ball club."

The Celtics' running game could be more accelerated during Thursday night's second game at the Boston Garden, because Havlicek might be available for full-time duty.

Although he did not start in the series opener, he played 40 minutes, scored 16 points, grabbed six rebounds and had six assists. And most importantly, he said he felt little pain in the foot afterward.

In addition to Havlicek, the Celtics are hoping that two other regular starters, guard Charlie Scott and center Dave Cowens, regain top physical health during the three-day layoff between Games One and Two.

Both players departed early from Monday's practice. Scott, who had been suffering from an upset stomach for a couple of days, worked out briefly before leaving. Cowens, the Celtics' most productive player in the opening game with 25 points, 21 rebounds and 10 assists, didn't even practice. He left quickly and later said he was merely tired after having played the entire 48 minutes Sunday.

The Suns also had two casualties. Reserve center Dennis Awtrey reported to practice and disclosed he had suffered an injury to a joint on the front part of the top of his left foot, and substitute swingman Nate Hawthorne bruised his right hand against the rim while attempting a stuff shot during the workout. Awtrey said he didn't know how he had hurt himself.

Tim Foli's Bat Warming Up For Expos After 5 Seasons

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

Tim Foli spent his first five years in the major leagues just warming up. This year he's found the range.

"A trivia question: Who's leading this club in home runs?" asked Montreal's Nate Colbert after the Expos defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 4-2 Monday night.

"The answer," Colbert said, "is Foli with four."

In his first five years, the Montreal shortstop hit a grand total of five roundtrippers, his biggest season prior to this being 1974 when he had three.

Foli's fifth-inning homer came one pitch after Pittsburgh pitcher John Candelaria walked Larry Parrish. That tied the score at 2-2 and Montreal catcher Barry Foote untied it an out later when he lined his first home run of the season over the left field fence.

"Candelaria was giving us a lot of fast balls, and we just happened to get two home runs off him," said Foote.

The Expos added a single run in the seventh to give pitcher Woody Fryman his third victory of the season against two losses.

'Different' Ali Finishes Off Gallant Dunn In Fifth Round

By JOHN VINOCUR
Associated Press Writer

MUNICH (AP) — The knockout came as promised following the new svelte look, the dancing and the mocking Frankenstein lockstep. But Muhammad Ali has changed, even slipped, and he says so in his own elliptical way.

Ali had just knocked down Richard Dunn five times to score a fifth-round knockout at the stroke of 4 a.m. in Munich Tuesday, and he had gotten through the ritual talk of greatness, amazement, and miracles.

Then he got around to saying what seemed increasingly evident. "I've got just enough to carry me through the year and destroy Norton. Then I'm going to retire."

Frankly, he said, "I'm nowhere what I was a while ago."

There was the Ali of the right-hand lead and left hook who sent the red-haired Briton to the canvas three times in the fourth round and twice in the fifth, before the fight was over with 55 seconds to go to the bell. There was the Ali who signaled that Dunn's time had come at the start of the final round, and the Ali who walked wooden-legged toward the Englishman, his arms stretched out in front of him like a Frankenstein monster.

Yet Ali was changed — "a totally different Ali," he said himself — a harder puncher than before, perhaps, but a fighter increasingly rooted in the canvas.

It was also an Ali who frequently crossed his legs awkwardly during the first three rounds, took a series of stiff right jabs from the left-handed Englishman in the third round and seemed markedly slower and less mobile than the fighter who floated like a butterfly and stung like a bee.

"He's missing; the reflexes have gone back; he should retire," said Duane Bobick after he saw Ali in training. Bobick won his 36th-straight fight in the Olympiahalle, just before Ali's victory, knocking out Bunny Johnson of England.

But Ali didn't seem to be paying any immediate attention. He insisted on talking about new trick karate punches and promised to jog five miles Tuesday, preparing for an exhibition in Tokyo next month and the fight against Ken Norton in Yankee Stadium next September which should bring him $9 million.

Through Dunn, Ali showed that he could erase the memory of the fat, sluggish 34-year old who nearly lost a month ago against Jimmy Young, a fighter who had knocked Dunn out in 1974.

The champion weighed 220 pounds, down 10 from the Young fight, and his body had some of its old muscle tone. Even so, Ali was breathing hard after the first round, and he found Dunn a much tougher fighter than he imagined.

"He was right in on me, making me work and do my best," Ali said of the Englishman. "I did the rope-a-dope a couple of times, and it came in real handy, because it saved me some work."

"Dunn was much better than I thought he was, but at the pace we were going I knew he'd fade out after 10 or 11. I'm still 34, finished and washed up and over the hill. He's 31, and he had a little more pep." Ali acknowledged that Dunn had hurt him twice, and said he considered the Englishman, who dreamed he would beat the champion in the eighth round, merited a return match.

Dunn said at first in the ring that he thought the decision of the German referee to stop the fight was too quick, but with reflection the former construction worker said in his dressing room, "I wouldn't challenge the ref's decision. He's the boss, and I'm only the foreman, but I thought it could have gone on a bit."

After a disastrous prefight promotion in which the fight was threatened with cancellation because of a shortfall by the German promoters in paying Ali's purse, the Munich Olympiahalle had about three-quarters of its 12,500 seats filled for the bout.

Ali, who shelled out $100,000 to buy 2,000 seats for American servicemen, got a message of thanks from President Ford for the gesture, but it wasn't clear how much Ali's help meant to the promoters.

Bob Arum, the American copromoter who handled U.S. television rights, said he believed that a large part of the crowd came on free tickets or cut-rate tickets sold at the last minute.

Arum estimated two days ago that the German promoters would lose close to a half million dollars, but Rudolfo Sabbatini, a respected matchmaker from Rome, said he understood the loss could be in excess of $600,000.

Arum said the 160,000-mark ($60,000) rent for the Olympiahalle had been paid only 10 hours before the championship and that there was a measure of doubt until the last minute about whether it would come off.

Janet Guthrie Sets Sights On World 600 Stock Car Race

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Janet Guthrie, 38, balked in an attempt to become the first woman to qualify for the Indianapolis 500, will try to run the same day, next Sunday, in the world's longest stock car race, the $249,155 World 600 at the Charlotte Motor Speedway.

She is being backed by a woman officer of a Charlotte bank, Linda Ferreri.

Miss Ferreri is buying a Chevrolet built by Hoss Ellington of Wilmington, N.C., and Miss Guthrie will try to qualify it for the 400-lap, 600-mile race. If she does, she will become the first woman to compete in the World 600, in which such stock car greats as Richard Petty, Buddy Baker, David Pearson and Cale Yarborough will run.

Yarborough, who had said that women were not strong enough to race the fastest machines, has agreed to shake the car down for her, giving it some trial runs before Miss Guthrie gets behind the wheel later this week.

"I've still got doubts about a woman having the physical strength to handle a racer, especially a big ol' stock car weighing 3,700 pounds," Yarborough said. "But after keeping up with the Indy time trials — where she could have been successful with a good car and a break or two — I feel she's sincere in her efforts and I admire her for wanting to try and make the race down here. I'll be glad to help her any way I can."

Another stock car driver, Bobby Allison, who also had criticized Miss Guthrie's attempt at Indy, was mollified as well. "Obviously she can drive a race car," he said in a telephone interview from his shop in Hueytown, Ala. He noted that she did 181 m.p.h. in an Indy practice.

Ellington said the purchase price for the car was about $21,000, minus engine. The power plant will be provided by veteran racing mechanic Ralph Moody of Charlotte. "They'll have at least $27,000 in it by the time they get through," Ellington said.

Miss Ferreri, a vice president of advertising and promotions for First Union National Bank, has been active in the women's movement. She admitted that she doesn't know much about auto racing and has never seen a race at the Charlotte Motor Speedway. "I got into this last week when a friend observed during a conversation that Janet Guthrie was a hoax," she said. "I differed and one thing led to another. I just decided to do it. For me, it's a sports issue and an emotional issue. I knew the economics weren't an impossibility." She refused to say where the money is coming from.

Kentucky Voters To Also Decide On Congressional Candidates Today

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — While Kentucky voters decide today on the presidential nominees of their parties, they also have congressional candidates to vote on.

Six of the state's seven congressional districts have candidates battling to be nominated for U.S. representative.

Here is a breakdown, by district, of the congressional races:

—1st District: Incumbent Rep. Carroll Hubbard is running without opposition for the Democratic nomination. Bob Bersky of Sturgis and Arthur Lee McLaughlin of Sacramento are candidates for the Republican nomination. The winner faces Hubbard in the November general election.

—2nd District: Here, there is even less a contest than in the 1st District. Incumbent Rep. William Natcher faces no opponents for the Democratic nomination. State Sen. Walter Baker of Glasgow is alone in the GOP field. These two meet for a true contest in November.

—3rd District: Perhaps the liveliest political race in the bunch. Louisville alderman James Lawrence is making a strong anti-busing challenge for incumbent Rep. Romano Mazzoli's slot in the Democratic race.

The Republican slate finds Louisville housewife Shirley

Murray and high school principal Denzil Ramsey at loggerheads for their party's nomination.

—4th District: Covington attorney Ed Winterberg and George Martin of Anchorage have squared off in the

Revival Services

At First Assembly

Start Wednesday

Pastor Jerry Hendley and the congregation of the First Assembly of God at 16th and Glendale announce the beginning of revival services with Evangelist Danny Frazee and his wife Linda and five year old son Scotty who will be singing each night.

The services will run from Wednesday, May 26 through Sunday, May 30 beginning at seven p.m. nightly.

The Frazes have recorded a long-playing album and will be featuring gospel singing as well as nightly preaching. There will be special prayer for the sick each night, Pastor Hendley said.

Regardless of church affiliation, all visitors will be welcome to hear this twentieth-century preacher minister the gospel in an old-fashioned way, the church pastor said.

Democratic race.

The winner will face incumbent Rep. Gene Snyder, who is unopposed for the GOP nod, in November.

—5th District: Two men are challenging longtime incumbent Rep. Tim Lee Carter for the Republican nomination.

Although Carter expects no real threat from either, Elmer Begley Jr. of Hyden and Thurman Hamlin of London are nonetheless on the GOP ballot.

Five candidates are on the Democratic ballot for the 5th District. They are: Charles C. Smith of Williamsburg; Lyle Willis of Corbin; Jesse Ramey of Waynesburg; Nick Augusta of Cumberland and Hubert Marcum of Manchester.

—6th District: Incumbent Rep. John Breckinridge reportedly does not even plan to be in the state today. His only opponent for the Democratic nomination is Victor Privett of Jessamine County.

Republican voters in the 6th District looking for candidates for their party's nomination will find none.

—7th District: Ray Adkins of Whitesburg is challenging veteran Congressman Carl Perkins for the Democratic nomination. Granville Thomas, a perennial candidate, is unopposed on the GOP slate.

received "a tremendous boost" when he won easily in Michigan.

Rogers maintained Reagan has been damaged by "rash statements"—notably a remark that sale of the Tennessee Valley Authority to private industry was "something to look at."

Rogers said the TVA supplies electricity to large parts of Kentucky and jobs to many Kentuckians and "if you dismantle that, you run the very high risk of some companies putting some of our people out of work. Kentuckians don't cotton to somebody taking jobs away from them."

Reagan's state campaign manager, Olney Owen, said the former California governor only meant he would examine TVA "like he would any other program—all programs," and predicted the remark wouldn't "have much impact" today.

"From all indications we have, Gov.

Reagan is the winner in Kentucky and we have no reason to think otherwise," Owen said. "He has been the frontrunner in Kentucky all the time."

Reagan's Kentucky campaign started earlier than Ford's and Reagan has visited the state several times.

The state GOP convention several weeks ago chose 27 delegates favoring Reagan to eight for Ford. Two were uncommitted. Despite their preferences, however, delegates will be bound on the first national convention ballot by the primary results.

State GOP executive director Larry Van Hoose said the Ford campaign has surged since the convention.

He said Ford now "has a slight advantage. They've spent a good deal of money, and they have the incumbency going for them. Neither campaign has been lavish, but the Ford people had more money to spend when they needed it."
